Brandon University has campuses on both Treaty 1 and Treaty 2 lands, and we are a gathering place for people from many backgrounds around the world. In this way, we carry on the Indigenous customs of our home in Brandon. We acknowledge Brandon is on shared territory between the Dakota Oyate, the Anishinaabeg, and the National Homeland of the Red River Métis. Today, many other Indigenous people call Brandon their home, including the Ininew, Anisninewuk, Denesuline, and Inuit.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Prerequisite: 9 credit hours in French.

Taught in French. Major theoretical and methodological approaches in literary studies read in a transversal way with literary texts of the 20th century. The exposition of the theories will be supplemented by an overview of the methodologies attached to them and the literary analyses that they allow. Students will be able to acquire an overview of the main critical approaches, their methodologies and their epistemological issues.

3 lecture hours per week, one term.

Course structure

Classes focus on informed lectures that serve as foundations for seminar-style reflection. This course is organized around short lectures, small-group discussions, and narrative practice as ways to access and interpret the interconnectedness between theory and practice. The course's Moodle webpage is essential to the success of this course: not only will it showcase some of the online tools (forum, wiki, video), but all texts and important announcements will be posted on this site.

Objectives

- Develop knowledge and meaningful connection between French literary theory and literary and artistic practice across
- Demonstrate historical connection to French and Francophone texts through their historical and theoretical implications
- Examine the cultural aesthetics and their connection to politics surrounding their expression
- Situate, explain, and analyze the concerns addressed in literary and cultural productions in French

Moodle Access

- Students must check the Moodle course webpage regularly to access excerpts and other materials.

Allocation of Marks

3 Quizzes: 30 % (3 x 10 %)

Each quiz will assess the student's comprehension of key concepts, events, and texts, including theoretical, literary and cultural strategies. Active presence in class, rigorous preparation (close reading, analysis, etc.), and constant work through learning activities will ensure student success.

3 Sharing Circles: 30% (3 x 10 %)

Students will receive guidelines before each circle. Each reading circle ends with a self- and peer assessment. The instructor will provide detailed instructions and assessment sheets.

Participation: 10%

Regular in-class presence, participation, and involvement are essential to this upper-level undergraduate course. Additionally, completing and submitting assignments means that students should participate in a way that best fits their context, learning style, and personality. However, I expect for students to engage with the course materials by submitting their work on time and keeping up with the schedule. This aspect of the course will also involve self-assessment.

Final Project: 30%

Students will expand on one of the issues examined during the course and have the choice to further study the issue via research-creation or research. This project will also include a short, individual presentation (5% from this presentation will go towards the final project grade). Students will receive detailed guidelines and rubrics.

Missed assignments, late assignments, et al.

Failure to complete an assignment will automatically result in a grade of Nil or F unless the student communicates with the instructor prior to the due date and/or provides sufficient justification. The instructor does not manage a student's schedule. We strongly encourage students to communicate with us before the submission date should they have difficulty submitting their work on time or if they are overwhelmed—it happens! There is always a solution; I will gladly work with you to find one.

STATEMENT OF "FAIR WARNING"

If you have missed a class, you are solely responsible for catching up by either getting notes from a fellow student or making up for your absence on your own. It is recommended that students help one another whenever they can. While we strongly value personalized education at BU, we also strongly value responsibility and accountability.

STATEMENT ON ACCESSIBILITY AND ACCOMMODATION

Brandon University values diversity and inclusion, recognizing disability as an aspect of diversity. Our shared goal is to create learning environments that are accessible, equitable, and inclusive for all students. Student Accessibility (SAS) supports students by developing an individualized plan of accommodation, helping students understand their learning needs, and assisting faculty with provision of accommodations for students. Should you anticipate or experience disability-related barriers, including permanent, chronic, or temporary disabilities/or medical conditions, you are invited to contact the Student Accessibility Coordinator or complete the Student Information form to request a confidential discussion with the SAS Coordinator. If you already have established accommodations with SAS, please contact me early in the term to discuss the accommodations outlined in your letter of accommodation.

No audio or video recording of this material, lectures, or presentations is allowed in any format, openly or surreptitiously, in whole or in part. Course materials

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The Brandon University Academic Integrity Policy underlines the importance of all members of the BU community respecting and upholding the fundamental values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect, responsibility, and courage (ICAI, 2014) in every academic activity. Students are responsible for ensuring they understand and adhere to these values.

Activities that depart from these values include, but are not limited to, the following: plagiarism, cheating, academic interference, falsification, unauthorized use of artificial intelligence (AI), and aiding others to depart from academic integrity.

Students found responsible for having departed from academic integrity will be subject to remedies and/or sanctions. Depending on the scope and impact of the departure as well as the student's level of study and past academic integrity history, remedies and sanctions range from mandated educational activities through failure on an assignment/failure in the course to expulsion from the University and revocation of credentials/degrees granted.

All departures from academic integrity will be recorded in the BU Academic Integrity Repository, and certain sanctions will result in a notation on the student's transcript.

The full Academic Integrity Policy, including definitions of academic integrity's fundamental values, examples of activities that depart from academic integrity, and processes undertaken in cases of suspected departures from academic integrity, is available at www.brandonu.ca/senate-office/senate-policies

BU advice about AI tools. Artificial Intelligence technologies are rapidly developing and changing, with new uses being explored daily. These tools can be used in productive, creative, interesting and useful ways. They may also be used in dishonest, unproductive, even malicious or destructive ways. Brandon University supports and upholds principles of academic freedom, academic integrity, and academic honesty. Each instructor chooses (and states) which level of AI will be acceptable in each course. Please review each syllabus carefully. Ask your instructor if you are unsure whether the use of AI constitutes a breach of academic integrity.

Work with AI responsibly, in ways that support your learning and preserve your academic integrity. You are responsible for any inaccurate, distorted, biased, offensive, or uncredited content you submit. Protect yourself by being open and honest in how you use AI for this course. Fact-check all content provided by AI.

Uncredited usage is wrong and will cost those students who fail to credit AI.

If you have another AI tool use in mind, please ask ahead before using for this course.

You may not use a text generator for research support, outline creation, informative back-and-forth chats, drafting, or editing.

Permissible use of AI:

Programs such as MS Word's grammar review or similar proofreading/editing programs may be used to identify grammatical errors in essays. The student should then correct the grammar with their own words. Making the correction oneself will help the student become more conversant with the fundamentals of grammar and will ensure that there is not a large gap between the student's in-class writing and the student's writing in take-home essays.

It is permissible, but not recommended that students use AI-generated text as a source. If students use AI (such as Chat GPT, for example) to generate responses to an essay question or for some aspect of the topic under discussion, students must approach the AI material as they would a more conventional research source. In other words, they may borrow the ideas and/or language, but must cite the ideas (and/or quotations) wherever the students use the AI source within their essay. Unlike a conventional source, however, AI sources are not available to the instructor, so the student must keep a copy of both the question that they posed to the AI and the AI's response. The instructor may ask the student to produce such sources on request.

Non-permissible use of AI:

Use of AI-generated text in essays without attribution is a violation of academic integrity and will be considered plagiarism, because it is not the student's work. If the professor suspects that a portion of a student's paper has been created by AI, the professor will follow Brandon University's academic integrity policy (under 3.15 in the General Calendar), arranging for a meeting with the student to discuss the concern. At the meeting the professor may ask the student questions about the essay in order to ascertain whether the student indeed wrote the essay.

The Brandon University Academic Integrity Policy underlines the importance of all members of the BU community respecting and upholding the fundamental values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect, responsibility, and courage (ICAI, 2014) in every academic activity. Students are responsible for ensuring they understand and adhere to these values.

Activities that depart from these values include, but are not limited to, the following: plagiarism, cheating, academic interference, using generative AI without proper acknowledgment, falsification, and aiding others to depart from academic integrity.

Students found responsible for having departed from academic integrity will be subject to remedies and/or sanctions. Depending on the scope and impact of the departure as well as the student's level of study and past academic integrity history, remedies and sanctions range from mandated educational activities through failure on an assignment/failure in the course to expulsion from the University and revocation of credentials/degrees granted.

All departures from academic integrity will be recorded in the BU Academic Integrity Repository, and certain sanctions will result in a notation on the student's transcript.
